12 In Family Die In Blaze

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—Melted toys and a whimpering puppy were all that remained Wednesday of a gay Christmas planned for the 12 members of one family who died in a pre-dawn fire. Six others escaped.

Eight boys and four girls, ranging in age from 8 months to 20 years, were sleeping in one small bedroom upstairs when an oil heater exploded on the first floor, setting off a fire that trapped them in their beds.

"I'll just have to put my trust in the Lord," said Mary Lee Johnson, 47, the mother of nine of the Negro victims and grandmother of the other three.

The house was located less than a block from King Street in Charleston's business district.

Premier Visits In Algeria

ORAN, Algeria (AP) — Premier Chou En-lai of Red China spent part of a busy Christmas Day in Algeria by visiting a modern industrial plant being built by the French near Oran.

With President Ahmed Ben Bella, Chou flew from Algiers to Oran on the fifth day of his official visit to Algeria. Then the two drove 40 miles along heavily guarded roads to the muddy construction site at Arzew.

Chou showed great interest in the unfinished plant, to cost $60 to $80 million. It will compress methane gas from Sahara fields into a liquid for shipment to Europe.

Holiday Deaths Mount Steadily

The toll of traffic deaths during the two-day midweek Christmas holiday mounted steadily Wednesday and was far ahead of the final toll for a recent non-holiday period of equal length.

With hours still remaining before the end of the holiday period that began at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday and ends at midnight Wednesday, the count of traffic fatalities across the nation stood at 262.

The current holiday toll compares with a total of 170 traffic deaths counted by the Associated Press during a 48-hour non-holiday period, from 12:01 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 10, to midnight Wednesday, Dec. 12.

Izvestia Hits U. S. Agency

MOSCOW (AP) — Izvestia says the U.S. Information Service is sending out fraudulent letters to try to intensify the Soviet-Chinese ideological struggle.

The Soviet government newspaper said Wednesday the letters were distributed to business firms in various parts of the world—purporting to come from the Soviet foreign trade association. Actually they were written by the USIS, Izvestia asserted.

Izvestia said the letters contain criticism of a book by Red Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung. They were sent to business firms in Argentina, Mexico, Colombia, Australia, Italy, Sweden, Somali, Morocco and Iran.

Border Worries Kenya Leaders

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—The Kenya government declared a state of emergency Wednesday on its northeast border with Somalia following repeated attacks by Somali bandits on Kenya military and police posts.

A Kenya government spokesman in Nairobi said the Cabinet of the newly independent East African nation will discuss the frontier strife. Somalia claims the northern district of Kenya where mostly Somali live. It is a region of 60,000 square miles, mostly desert.

Russian Family Enjoys Holiday

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP)—An American father said grace at a Christmas dinner in southern Ohio on Wednesday evening, symbolizing in a special way perhaps, the hopes of the world.

"We thank thee O Lord, not only for this food, but for this opportunity to entertain our Russian friends in our home and in our country. We pray that we might all understand each other better and that the world will truly realize peace in our times, in our children's times and in succeeding generations."

The prayer was offered by James McKenzie, who, with his wife and five children are entertaining a Russian family for the holidays.

Victor Pozdnev, an automotive engineer in Moscow, his schoolteacher wife, Nina, and their two children are observing their first Christmas.

Three Dead, Four Hurt As Train Crushes Car

BANGOR — Three Bangor youths were fatally injured and four others, including a Stroudsburg teenager, were seriously hurt in a collision of their car with an Erie-Lackawanna train two miles south of Bangor at 9:45 p.m. Tuesday.

Richard Van Norman, 20, of 128 Kline St., Bangor, was instantly killed. Lawrence A. Ryder, 17, of 228 S. Main St., identified by state police at Easton as the driver, and Robert Butz, 17, of 631 Broadway, died yesterday in Easton Hospital.

The injured all of whom were taken to Easton Hospital are: Robert Winkler, 15, of 600 Scott St., Stroudsburg, in guarded condition with a possible skull fracture. He is the son of Mrs. Doris Winkler.

Larry Brown, 20, 128 Brown St., Bangor, in critical condition with a fractured skull and internal injuries. He is the son of Mrs. Del Brown.

James Gentile, 17, of 324 N. Ninth St., Bangor, in guarded condition with possible skull fracture and multiple lacerations of the face. Gentile is the son of Mrs. Julio Gentile.

Jeffery J. Brusie, 16, of 239 Market St., Bangor, was treated for lacerations of the face and body bruises and released. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. James Brusie.

Police said the car, owned by Ryder's aunt, Miss Hilda Messinger, was being driven east on Rt. 710 when it was struck at a railroad crossing by the locomotive.

The car was turned around and its right side ripped off by the impact. Police identified the engineer as Glennwood Beagle, 37, of 437 S. Main St., Bangor. No one on the train was reported injured.

Ryder was born in Harrisburg, the son of Allan W. and Blanche Messinger Ryder. He was a member of the First United Evangelical Church and its Sunday School and the State Belt Chapter, Order of DeMolay. He was a senior at Bangor Area Joint Senior High School and a member of the school's track team.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Anna Messinger of Bangor.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the Hough Funeral Home in Bangor. The Rev. M. E. Dettler will officiate. Burial will be in St. John's Cemetery, Bangor.

Van Norman was born in Phillipsburg, N. J., the son of Raymond and Harriet Cole Van-Norman. He was a member of Bangor Presbyterian Church and its Sunday School and sang in the church choir.

He attended Bangor schools and was employed by Styles Craft Sportswear in Bangor.

Surviving in addition to his parents is a sister, Mrs. Joan Campanero of Nazareth, and a brother, David of Crabbtree. Funeral services will be held Saturday at 3 p.m. at Hough's. Burial will be in Saimont Cemetery in Phillipsburg. The Rev. G. Thomas Skyler will officiate.

Butz was born in Pen Argyl but had lived in Bangor most of his life. He was the son of George and Mary Edwards Butz. He was a member of Bangor Presbyterian Church and Sunday School and the State Belt Chapter, Order of DeMolay. He was a senior in Bangor Area High School and a member of the school's German Club.

His parents are the only survivors. Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. at Hough's. Burial will be in St. John's Cemetery. The Rev. Mr. Skyler will officiate.

Johnson Orders Cutback In Federal Employment

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson and his family celebrated a gay, cheery Christmas, but it was a working day as well for the chief executive.

He ordered a cut in federal employment and turned his attention to a crisis in Cyprus. He also found time to guide newsmen on a tour of his sprawling ranch and to work out a deal for leasing 40 acres of land across the road bordering his 400 acres.

It was a gay, cheerful day around the ranch, with shirt-sleeve weather, and 28 of the Johnson clan gathered at the big frame and stone ranch house on the bank of the Pedernales River for the traditional turkey dinner.

Another tradition was broken. Christmas presents in bright, colorful wrappings were left unopened beneath an 8-foot cedar tree until after dinner. Usually the Johnsons dig into the presents on Christmas Eve.

Dinner Late
Dinner was later than usual, too, because the President was busy taking newsmen and photographers on a tour of the ranch house and yard, over the polite and futile protests of the First Lady.

"I'd just give them a wonderful tour when they come back Friday," Mrs. Johnson assured her husband. "The turkey and dressing are not getting any better — but, as you say darling."

Johnson had a sort of informal news conference, too, and told of Christmas being a working day as well as one of joy.

Two or three times, the chief executive said, he had conferred by telephone with Secretary of State Dean Rusk on the violence that has erupted in Cyprus.

"We have a situation developing there and we are watching it very carefully," Johnson reported.

New Budget

Johnson announced that his new budget will call for a small reduction in the number of federal employees in the 1965 fiscal year that begins July 1. He said he is setting employment ceilings for all government agencies, directing heads of departments to stay within them, and wants progress reports every three months.

The President said federal employment has gone up more than 130,000 in the past three years. He declined to say how much he intends to bring it down.

The Johnsons — President, First Lady and daughters Lucy Baines and Lynda Bird—were decked out in colors befitting the gaiety of the day.

First Survivors Return After Ship Blast Disaster

LONDON (AP) — Tear-filled family reunions welcomed home Wednesday the first British survivors from the tragic cruise of the Greek liner Lakonia, billed in advance as "A Christmas you can never forget."

Two Royal Moroccan airliners sped 158 survivors of the flaming sea disaster from Casablanca to London.

Waiting relatives embraced the 74 men, 64 women and 20 children with tears of joy. Others sought information on relatives still missing.

Of the 1,036 passengers and crew members forced to abandon the liner 180 miles north of Madeira Sunday, 935 survived, 73 died, and 28 were still missing, the British Admiralty announced in Gibraltar.

The search in the Atlantic for the missing — living or dead — was abandoned Tuesday.

Most survivors spent Christmas Day waiting for passage back at Madeira, the Canary Islands or Casablanca. Of Madeira's holiday hotels, few were in a festive mood. Some were in hospitals.

"Sleep — that's the best thing happening to me this Christmas," one man said.

The 158 survivors flown to London arrived embittered by what they considered a lack of safety precautions on the 20,314-ton Lakonia. They also echoed other survivors charges of panic among the crew.

One passenger, Mrs. Helen Gartside of England, said "The Lakonia crew were in the life boats before the passengers. It was terrible."

But she said the Lakonia's captain, Mathios Zarsbeiz, was "crying toward the end, just wandering around with tears streaming down his face." The Captain was the last to leave the stricken liner.

Although they had set out from Southampton last Thursday expecting to spend Christmas on Madeira or some other port of call, most survivors returning to London were only too glad to be back with family and friends.

The Greek Line, owners of the ill-fated Lakonia, had cars and ambulances ready to transport passengers to their homes or hotels. There were truckloads of clothing available and all without funds were advanced money to get home.

Returning passengers complained that fire hydrants on the ship had no water when turned on, and that level-headed passengers had to take charge from the panicked crew.

Some singled out the ship's officers for praise and cited the language barrier among British, German, Greek and Italian crewmen for the turmoil.

The case of the Lakonia will probably be handled by maritime courts of inquiry in England where the cruise was advertised as "the safest way to spend your Christmas holidays," and in Greece where the Lakonia was registered.

Christmas In World Marked By Joy, Tolerance, Gunfire

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Christmas tree gleamed in the frozen Korean front and soldiers standing guard hoisted an electric sign pointed toward the Communist north saying "Merry Christmas."

Back came Christmas music from Red loudspeakers.

At the grim Red Wall dividing Berlin tragedy marred the Christmas passes given West Berliners to visit relatives in the eastern sector of the city. Two young East Berliners vaulted the wall to escape to the west. One made it, the other was shot—managing to get over the wall only to die hours later.

Communist loudspeakers blared Bing Crosby's recording of "White Christmas" to West Berliners as they crossed at five assigned wall points.

In the bloody jungles and rice paddies of South Viet Nam, the Communist guerrillas called a Christmas Day cease-fire in their fight against the Vietnamese soldiers and their U.S. advisers.

And so the day honoring the Prince of Peace came to a world that has found little peace since the dawn of history.

Barriers Dropped
Barriers dividing mankind, from the Berlin Wall to the hostile frontiers of the Holy Land, opened for Christmas uniting in yuletide joy and prayers for peace.

More than 65,000 West Berliners with Communist permission poured through the Red Wall for Christmas reunions with relatives isolated for 28 months since the wall went up. Many West Berliners carried geese for the Christmas dinners.

Thousands of other pilgrims crossed the fortified Israel-Jordan frontier to kneel at the Bethlehem shrine where Christ was born.

Pope Paul VI celebrated Mass in a poor workers' quarter of Rome, distributed toys and candies to the unfortunate, and reminded Catholic worshippers: "Christmas is the feast of the needy and the poor."

Like most Americans, President Johnson spent Christmas with his family, at their ranch outside Johnson City, Tex.

It was a white Christmas for millions of Americans, but still a time of sadness for some.

Kennedy Home
There was none of the water skiing, tennis or touch football typical of past Christmases with the family of President John F. Kennedy in Palm Beach, Fla.

But Santa Claus still showered gifts on the Kennedy children — 6-year-old Caroline and 3-year-old John Jr.—as he did for millions of American youngsters.

And lonely Americans on the dreary front lines of the Cold War were not forgotten.

The 16,000 U.S. troops in South Viet Nam and their buddies on barren outposts in frozen Korean hills took advantage of a precarious lull in hostilities to sit down to a turkey dinner. Communist loudspeakers on the truce line dividing North and South Korea broadcast Christmas music to homesick GI's along with Red propaganda.

Soldiers of the U.S. 1st Cavalry Division lighted a 40-foot Christmas tree atop Hill 191, the scene of fierce fighting in the Korean War and raised an electric "Merry Christmas" sign in 15-inch letters.

Cease-Fire Called
In a self-proclaimed gesture of good will, Communist Viet Cong guerrillas called a 24-hour cease-fire in South Viet Nam. Skeptical American military spokesmen said the Vietnamese government had no plans for a temporary halt in the guerrilla war.

Western Christians in the two citadels of atheistic communism, Moscow and Peking, improvised services as Christmas went by almost unnoticed around them.

The Russian Orthodox Church celebrates Christmas Jan. 7, according to the Julian calendar. But, in a rare sign of warm interchurch relations, Metropolitan Nikodim of the Orthodox Church attended midnight Mass with Russian Roman Catholics in Moscow.

The relatively few practicing Russian Catholics, mostly older persons, attended services at the Church of St. Louis of the French, the only Roman Catholic church in the Soviet capital.

In Warsaw Stefan Cardinal Wysniski denounced restrictions on freedom of worship as reactionary and barbarian without mentioning the Communists or Poland's Red regime.

"All attempts to oppose man's right to know God will be frustrated," the cardinal declared in a Christmas sermon to 3,000 faithful in Warsaw's St. John's Cathedral.

Queen Elizabeth II noted a lull in the Cold War in her annual Christmas message to the British Commonwealth and added: "Let us remember the many undernourished people, young and old, scattered throughout the world."

Dr. Arthur Michael Ramsey, the archbishop of Canterbury and Britain's ranking Anglican prelate, injected the hope that Pope Paul's pilgrimage to the Holy Land will stimulate Christian unity and discussion of "those matters concerning baptism and mixed marriages where there is injury and trouble."

A pre-Christmas tragedy drew to a close as two jet planes arrived in London from Casablanca with 158 survivors of the Greek cruise ship Lakonia, abandoned in flames Sunday night 180 miles north of Madeira.

The other 733 known survivors of the holiday trip disaster waited in Madeira, Casablanca or the Canary Islands for transportation home. The Greek Line said as many as 145 others may have died.

Probably the last Christmas Mass was said in a tiny, hurriedly erected church for 200 survivors of what was once the Italian village of Longarone. The other 3,000 inhabitants perished Oct. 9 when a mountain toppled into the reservoir behind nearby Vajont Dam, flooding the village.

Tragedy, Too
There was tragedy in the United States, too. Christmas morning fires took the lives of 12 members of one family in Charleston, S.C., and six members of another family in Spring Lake, Mich. A Christmas tree fire in Muncie, Ind., killed two young children. Other fires in Lima, Ohio; Detroit, Philadelphia and New York caused damage but no deaths.

In New York thousands of worshippers overflowed St. Patrick's Cathedral for Christmas services.

1700 U.S. Citizens On Island

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—The office of Greek Cypriot President Archbishop Makarios announced Wednesday night that all British, Greek and Turkish forces would be placed under a British officer's command to restore law and order in Cyprus.

Makarios also said an appeal will be made to the U.N. Security Council, charging intervention by Turkey in Cyprus domestic affairs.

The announcement came after Greek and Turkish troops, based here under a treaty of alliance, left their camps to take up opposite sides in the five-day long fighting between Greek Cypriots and Turkish Cypriots.

Under the treaty, Greece has 850 soldiers stationed in Cyprus, Turkey 650.

Johnson Alarmed

As the situation worsened, U.S. President Lyndon B. Johnson conferred with Secretary of State Dean Rusk by telephone from his holiday retreat in Johnson City, Texas. He told newsmen he had talked with Rusk two or three times.

"We have a situation developing here and we are watching it very carefully," President Johnson said. "We have 1,700 citizens on that island."

Makarios announced Tuesday a mixed commission composed of Greek Cypriots and Turkish Cypriots would be formed to negotiate peace in the communal disputes and that they would be aided by British and American experts.

Greece and Turkey, along with Britain, are committed to guaranteeing the constitution adopted after Cyprus became independent of Britain in 1960.

But there was agreement their troops would not move out of the camps except in an emergency.

In a combination of a dispute over Greek Cypriot proposals to amend the constitution—which Turkish Cypriots said would rob them of their rights—and charges of the Turkish minority that Greek Cypriot police were harassing them, new feuds flared.

Jet Planes Buzz

Turkey sent two jet fighters to buzz the island Christmas morning in what the Turkish government called "warning flights" to halt the fighting that flared last week.

Makarios and Turkish Cypriot Defense Minister Osman Orek agreed on a new cease-fire effective at 12:30 p.m. Christmas day and Greek troops moved into the Greek sector of Nicosia half an hour before that deadline.

Makarios asserted that the Greek troops took up positions only because the Turkish contingent had left its camp to mass in the Turkish quarter.

Earlier in the day Greek Cypriot police and armed civilians broke through into the Turkish sectors of Nicosia and rounded up hundreds of Turkish men, women and children. They transported about 500, it was reported, to detention camps used five years ago by the British to hold Greek Cypriot resistance fighters.

Warning Flights

The Turkish air force jets made several low runs over Nicosia in the first sign of foreign intervention in five days of communal fighting on the Mediterranean island. The Turkish government tagged the operation "warning flights" to halt the fighting.

Dr. Arthur Michael Ramsey, Archbishop of Canterbury, called on the Roman Catholic Church yesterday to join Anglicans in discussion of differences over baptism and mixed marriages as an important step toward Christian unity.

The ranking prelate of the Church of England said in his Christmas sermon:

"With the church of Rome, we desire the friendship which lies in the brotherhood of the one baptism and we believe that an important step will be to discuss together these matters concerning baptism and mixed marriages where there is injury and trouble."

The archbishop said that as Pope Paul VI makes his pilgrimage to the Holy Land next month, "Christians everywhere will pray for unity in truth."

Dr. Ramsey also predicted closer relations with the Eastern Orthodox churches.

Robert Patton looks like any other boy, 15, and growing fast. His gifts for Christmas included a watch, clothes and books.

The big difference is the set of cold, steel bars separating Robert from the rest of the world. He has started a five to eight year sentence for killing a girl.

This Christmas was his first in the Colorado State Prison at Canyon City. He had two visitors.

Glass Firm Head Dies At 81

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Harry B. Higgins, former president and board chairman of Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., died Wednesday at his home in nearby Sewickley. He was 81.

Higgins, a native of Newburyport, Mass., served as president from 1944 until his election as board chairman and chief executive officer of the firm in 1957 and resigned as a director in February, 1962.

During his tenure as president, Pittsburgh Plate Glass engaged in a large expansion and diversification program in the glass, paint and chemical manufacturing fields.

Higgins was active in civic affairs in the Pittsburgh area and served as a director in many large corporations. At the time of his death he was a director of Pittsburgh Corning Corp. and Westinghouse Air Brake Co.

He is survived by his widow, Alice A. Cheney Higgins; a son, James Henry II; a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth E. Rhodes; a sister, Alice G. Higgins of Newburyport, Mass.; and three grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Friday at the Sewickley Presbyterian Church. Burial will be in Sewickley Cemetery.

Historic Hotel Wrecked By Fire

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP) — An historic hotel was wrecked by fire early Wednesday in Washington, killing one of some 40 occupants.

The victim was Earl Yaeger, about 45, of Baltimore.

The blaze virtually destroyed the Auld House Hotel, a three-story frame structure. The original building was built in 1821.

The other occupants, many in night clothes fled from the burning building. There were no reports of injury.

Firemen said the blaze apparently started on the top floor, possibly by someone smoking in bed. An estimate of damages was not available.

Police said Burkholder skidded on Second St., but managed to stop his vehicle. The Brown car also stopped, but Miller hit the rear of the Brown car and drove it into Burkholder's vehicle. Total damage was estimated at $375.

At 1:54 p. m., cars driven by Robert Coolbaugh, 23, of 1651 W. Main St., Stroudsburg; John M. Frisbie, 16, of 830 Monroe St., Stroudsburg, and Charles W. Chronister, 22, of East Berlin, Pa., were involved in an accident on W. Main St., in front of Stroud Union High School.

Police said Coolbaugh slowed to permit a vehicle to enter the high school driveway, Frisbie's car skidded into his when he applied his brakes and Chronister's car skidded into Frisbie's. Damage to all three was estimated at $350.

At 5:10 p. m., a car driven by Andrew J. Gilhooly, 33, of 512 Main St., Avoca, was traveling north on Interstate Route 80 when it hit an icy spot and skidded into the concrete divider. Damage was estimated at $800.

At 8:15 p. m., cars driven by Edgar Weber, 22, of 15 N. Fourth St., Stroudsburg, and Robert Baird, 17, of 440 Shook Ave., Stroudsburg, collided at Fifth and Thomas Sts.

Police said Baird's south-bound car skidded into the path of Weber's north-bound vehicle. Damage to both was estimated at $550.

Santa's Helper

If there is doubt in anyone's mind about the tremendous psychological impact of television on children, let him read the numerous letters to Santa Claus printed Tuesday in The Daily Record.

The requests for toys and gifts from excited children looking forward to Christmas morning surprises read like a television advertising log for the week.

Tammy, Barbie and Ken dolls seemed to lead the list of most popular toys, but Chatty Cathy, Big Bruiser and Slinky were not far behind. These are the personal friends of children—almost all of our children—who spend hours every day in front of the television set and out of mother's busy way.

Television is one of the greatest gifts of the twentieth century to motherhood, but the evidence produced by the letters to Santa is that television can sell anything to a four-year-old if a commercial is repeated often enough.

The possibilities for good educational influence are enormous; the possibilities for restricting and poisoning the minds, ideals and desires of millions of children are also enormous.

The kids love commercials. They are part of the show. And children, who love familiar things to be repeated over and over again, get mad if the commercials are not regular and the same. Adults, who do not appreciate them so much, do not complain about the apparent higher frequency of television commercials during children's shows.

This is not to say that all the children have been corrupted by television. There are some good shows squeezed in between the commercials.

And the letters to Santa Claus reveal a warm feeling for the rest of mankind in some little hearts. One writer asked Santa to bring presents to all the poor children. Another said he would leave a glass of milk and cookies by the Christmas tree. Some said thank you.

But the startling message of the letters to Santa Claus is the influence that television can exert on young minds. It is not all bad, but parents who find it easy to silence the kids by turning on the television should think twice about it and check first to see what is on.

The Treatment

Fining Can Be Fun

The Kiwanis Club is the "finest" group of citizens ever assembled under one roof. This week's session at the Penn-Stroud Hotel saw levies slapped on everything but attendance. Even if you show up it might cost you a penny.

But it is all in fun. Fellows like Atty. Edwin Krawitz and Ray Price Jr., the auto dealer go about the chore in harmony with those hit by assessments.

The Kiwanians are a jovial and interesting lot. Take for example Henry Tucker, the vehicle expert out West Main St. way. Henry will give you a tour of Europe — he's been over twice — with your meal. He'll also throw in a few barbs that makes it easier to gulp the last morsel.

John Baymore, the Security Trust official and Stroud Union school board director, kept the chatter going with a story how his two youngsters got up at 5:30 a. m. the day before Christmas.

"It must have been the excitement of anticipating Santa's visit," he evaluated.

Chet Miller, the general manager of WVPO, wasn't in the best of voice. The retiring head of the Kiwanis, sounded like a worn out version of Sophie Tucker as he went through the club's Christmas program. But like all members of the entertainment fraternity, Miller portrayed the typical "show must go" role.

Service organizations have their fun but they also pinpoint sincerity when the time arises. Rev. William Giles, the new pastor at the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church, who was guest speaker, received the assembled's close attention, when he gave the background of four well-known carols.

You could hear a pin drop as Rev. Giles researched Silent Night, O Come All Ye Faithful, and O Little Town Of Bethlehem.

The club typified the meaning of Christmas that you can blend good will, cheer and reverence into one meeting.

About Town

—By Gene Brown

From the AAA:
Two timely rules for winter car upkeep:

One is to keep the gas tank filled as much as possible. The other is to be less generous adding water to battery cells. Here's why:

A full gas tank checks condensation. That means less risk of water in the gasoline, with possible tie-up in a bit of ice freezes in the lines some cold day.

By keeping the battery's solution level lower in cold weather the battery stays stronger.

"Almost everyone who has ever been a patient has been annoyed by having a nurse wake him early in the morning — often before daylight — to take his temperature, wash his face, give him a cathartic or do some other silly thing that could be done later. One thinks at times that hospitals are for the convenience of nurses, not for the welfare of the patient . . . The fault is usually not individual but institutional."

"Til the above appeared this writer thought that nurses woke you up at the crack of dawn because they wanted someone to talk with.

Try and Stop Me --by Bennet Cerf

A town in South Dakota was in the process of electing a new mayor and board of advisors, and Mrs. Hubbard thought it would be educational to take her seven-year-old daughter with her to the polling booth. On the way home the daughter asked, "Mom, do you always vote for the men you love most?" "Whatever you put an idea like that in your mind?" wondered Mrs. Hubbard. "Well," said the daughter, "I saw you put kisses next to their names."

Colonel James Cokesburg Albright, the pride of Dallas, says that when it comes to gallantry, Texans cannot be beat. He cites as an example a rough old gaffer from the oil fields who was just preparing to dig into a succulent piece of roast pig at a barbecue when someone careened into him from behind and knocked his plate to the ground. In a rage he howled, "You haw! You want all the space there is?" and then he perceived the offender was the dignified wife of his host. Without a second thought he amended his statement, "Lady haw, that is, ma'am."

WASHINGTON — The long trouble-plagued U. S. Information Agency is headed for a new upheaval in both personnel and organizational setup.

Major changes due are as follows:

Director Edward Murrow and Deputy Director Donald Wilson will leave. Murrow is going on his own initiative, as a consequence of his recent lung cancer operation. While he has returned to his desk for short periods, he has been unable to resume full activity. So he has notified President Johnson of the desire to resign.

The USIA to lose its independent status and again be made a part of the State Department. The agency was under State Department jurisdiction in the Eisenhower administration, but was made autonomous by the late President Kennedy when Murrow gave up his career as a prominent radio-TV broadcaster to become director.

This switch-back is being made on the recommendation of Secretary Dean Rusk, supported by Representative John Rooney, D-N.Y., chairman of the Appropriations subcommittee that handles the budgets of the State Department and USIA.

Rooney has been critical of the USIA's effectiveness, particularly behind the Iron Curtain. It is his belief that restoration to the State Department's authority will both improve the agency's efficiency and save money. Other congressional critics are highly skeptical of either likelihood.

They point out the same contention was made when the last change took place in 1953 — without results.

Rusk wants USIA under his direct control on the ground that's necessary to "implement" foreign policy both at home and abroad. He holds the agency is an integral part of the administration of foreign policy.

"The Issues At Stake" — President Johnson agrees with Rusk. Also strongly influencing the President is the fact that USIA has been repeatedly assailed by both government and private authorities.

A number of congressional committees have probed USIA. Latest of these investigations is one now underway by a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee headed by Representative Dante Fascell, D-Fla. This inquiry has produced sharply critical testimony.

Behind Rusk's aim to regain domination over USIA is a "position paper" prepared by the State Department's Policy Planning Council and formally approved by the National Security Council under the late President Kennedy.

This significant policy declaration, titled "The Issues At Stake," states in part:

"We must seek to indoctrinate our own people and the peoples of the free community with a deeper understanding of the issues at stake, emphasizing that the existence of U.S.S.R., China, Cuba or other areas is not, in itself, an appropriate cause of war."

"At the same time, we should take account of the playback effects of our statements and actions, and seek to avoid unnecessary increases in tensions between the U.S. and U.S.S.R., which will render more difficult the process of communication in crises and non-crises situations and project to the free community an erratic image of U. S. purposes."

Others that have deprecated the USIA are the Sprague Committee, named by President Eisenhower; the Herter Committee, appointed by President Kennedy, and Brookings Institution. All reported adversely on the agency.

Eager Beavers — Now that the official mourning period is over, watch for a lot of activity booming Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver for Vice President. Privately, the late President's brother-in-law frankly admits he is very much interested in being President Johnson's running mate and plans are in the making to push that ambition. With that in mind, Shriver will leave the Peace Corps in the spring. He also is keeping an eye on the possibility of running for governor of Illinois . . . Assistant Defense Secretary Arthur Sylvester, of "news management" fame, is taking a new tack in that field. He has started firing up a boom for his boss, Defense Secretary McNamara, for Vice President. While McNamara is an avowed Republican, Sylvester sees that as no obstacle to being Johnson's running mate. As Sylvester figures it, that would be an advantage as it would give the Democratic slate a "bipartisan slant." . . . Also becoming active are devotees of UN ambassador Adlai Stevenson. They are talking of organizing a nationwide drive to boom the 1952 and 1956 Democratic standard-bearer for second place on the Johnson ticket.

Dear Abby

The Truth Will Out!

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of an employee who arrives at her job promptly at 9:00 A.M., but spends the first half hour of her working day fixing herself coffee? (She sends out for donuts or rolls because she hasn't as yet had her breakfast.) There is a coffee-break at ten in which she participates. No one has the nerve to report her to the office manager because she is a nice person otherwise and we don't want to start trouble.

who take a lot of my time. Well, she walks into our bedroom to get the clothes and I want to know if I should tell her not to, or should my husband tell her, since it's his mother

WALKED IN ON

DEAR WALKED: It isn't necessary for anyone to tell her. Gather the clothes together the night before wash day and take them to your mother-in-law's house.

DEAR ABBY: I am a divorced man of 44. I have been practically married for the past two years (all but the legal formalities) to a very wonderful woman who is 29, and is also a divorcee. Neither of us has children. Abby, I love this woman and have been begging her to marry me for almost as long as I have known her, but she insists that she does not want the responsibilities of marriage. She says she loves me, and wishes to continue our relationship as it is, free of legal commitments. I want a conventional life, complete with wife and family. She does not. How can I get her to change her mind?

WANTS A WIFE

DEAR WANTS: I doubt if you can. Start looking for a conventional woman — this time in a more conventional way.

Speaking Of Your Health:

Fear Of Serious Illness

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.
"Fear of cancer, rather than financial difficulties, is one of the major reasons for the patient's delay in getting medical treatment for suspected or diagnosed cancer."

This conclusion, based on a survey of 876 hospitalized patients, was reported by Dr. James C. Doyle of California. The carefully recorded study confirms the observations of physicians everywhere in all branches of medicine.

For the past 20 years, physicians have noted with growing concern the increase in the number of patients who come to their offices overwhelmed with fears. Usually anxiety is completely out of proportion to the severity of the illnesses.

Minor, relatively insignificant disease seems to catapult patients into emotional tangles by the propulsive force of their unreasonable fears.

For many, this fear is far more destructive than disease itself. Anxiety seems to dominate their lives before, during, and sometimes long after their illnesses have disappeared.

This anxiety is not necessarily characteristic of one sex, a particular age group, occupation or social, intellectual or economic group.

Timid people, stoic people, and even the stalwart, seem to be equally affected by the overtones of fear about the illnesses they have, or more often, think they have.

Physical illness and physical complaints motivate patients to come to the doctor's office. Sensitive physicians, aware of the emotional aspects of disease, almost always uncover some associated psychological accompaniment.

Fear in itself seems to be a disquieting illness that is easily communicated from one person to another. This "communicable disease" is not transmitted by germs or by viruses. Unwittingly, sometimes in error, more rarely purposefully, fear is instilled in one human by another.

The anxiety of one member of the family about a particular disease . . . cancer, tuberculosis or heart disease . . . really "infects" the sensitive psyche of those surrounding him.

Physicians observe that the delicate emotional balance of their patients is constantly threatened by the senseless fears of non-existent ailments.

Role Of The "G.P."

In the specialized or general practice of medicine, doctors are making valuable contributions to the welfare of their patients by serving as emotional detection clinics. The family doctor, affectionately known as the "G.P.," is the outstanding force that dissipates the havoc of groundless fear.

He knows that fear slowly and insidiously weaves its fabric and envelops the patient in a web of confusion. Today's physician has a better understanding of the emotional needs of his patients and he alleviates their anxieties as he examines, diagnoses and treats their illness.

This is an era of medicine filled with hope and achievement. Newer social studies, better understanding of the emotions and technical accomplishments are controlling the ravages of physical and psychological disease. Fear of cancer or fear of any disease should not deprive anyone of the advantages of early diagnosis, treatment and recovery.

These columns are designed to relieve your fears about health through a better understanding of your mind and body. All the hopeful new advances in medicine reported here are known to doctors everywhere.

Your individual medical problems should be handled by your own doctor. He knows you best.

Stories Behind Words

STOICISM

About 300 B.C., Zeno, a native of Cynus, founded a school of philosophy in Athens, Greece.

The meeting place of Zeno and his students was a porch on the north side of the Athens market place. This porch was called a "stoa" in Greek, and because the members of the new school of philosophy met there they were called Stoics.

The basic teaching of Stoicism was that virtue is the supreme end in life. Another of its teachings was that one should be free from passion, no matter what the circumstance. From the latter teaching came the word "stoical," meaning like a Stoic — showing no emotion.

Surveying The Debris

By George Dixon

WASHINGTON — "If," said my wife, surveying the debris from Christmas trimming and unwrapping, "the cops came into this house to investigate a homicide their official reports would read:

"There were signs of a violent struggle." "This struck me as so devastatingly true, I decided to stay my hand until after the holidays — or anyway until we can dig some of the tinsel and shattered ornaments out of the carpet. The way the place looks now, the cops would consider the case open and shut.

Possibly you have more painstaking, or more sure-fingered, people bedecking Christmas trees and dismantling Christmas packages in your house than we have in ours. But, if you get cluttered up as we do, don't let a policeman cross your threshold. He'd pull you in on a homicide rap, even if he couldn't find what my wife calls, with relish, the "corpus delicious."

Our Christmas decorating is supervised by my daughter, who is the soul of helpfulness. She is very lenient with us. She stands at a foreman's distance offering advice in the gentle tones of an ancient pyramid builder:

"The tree is crooked . . . not that way, that way . . . no, that's too far . . . more this way . . . No, when I'm facing you, my right is your left . . . Look out, it's going to fall! — Darn it, I told you it was going to fall . . ."

She varies this with: "That stuff is supposed to look like snow or icicles, dripping from the tree — it is supposed to be on the tree. There goes another war on the floor! — You stepped on those ornaments — It's going to be hell trying to get all that stuff out of the rug . . ."

Every moment at Christmas is a crisis. If our daughter didn't keep such strict watch over us, I think my wife and I would run away from home.

We try to flatter ourselves that our crises are unique. Perhaps they aren't. Here's one, for example:

On Christmas Day we wanted a fire in our fireplace, but discovered our wood was too wet to burn. I just happened to mention this with elaborate offhandness in a premeditated phone call to Columnist Drew Pearson. How it occurred to him, I can't imagine, but a while later he showed up in person, with two grandsons, and a car trunk crammed with logs. The three of them carried the logs into our place. I would have helped them, but it seemed so much more Christmasy just to watch.

Mr. Pearson had on his best Christmas — visiting overcoat. It was a mess from totting armfuls of dry logs, but how can you give the brush to a man who's come in sober with a load? And the columnist brought more than wood. As an extra Yule gift he forced upon me a package of a rather fundamental type of fertilizer, to which he has proudly lent his name.

A package of fertilizer is just what I wanted for Christmas. Exactly my size too. I was humus — I mean, humid — with gratitude, and became out of patience with my daughter when she cast a quizzical eye at Mr. Pearson's fertilizer and asked:

"What is it — your old chopped up cums?"

After this, we wallowed in Christmas peace and rest. My wife went to the telephone and I overheard her say to someone:

"First we will drive over to Baltimore to Edna's, then we will drive back and go to Ruth's in Virginia . . . Ruth says it's only twenty minutes from the Pentagon, but we don't live in the Pentagon . . . then we will go to Helene's, Polly's, Maryland's, Rachel's, and Lu's . . ."

As far as my loved one is concerned, husbands never live anywhere; only wives. We've never been to a husband's home yet.

Washington wives are entertaining more than ever this season. They gave no parties during the period of mourning for President Kennedy. Now they're doubling up — giving parties twice as big as usual.

This racing from one wife's house to another makes me wonder:

Why do we go to all the work decorating our own house for the holidays? We're hardly ever in it.

24-Hour Vigil For Sky Objects

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg-area residents have been asked to join in an organized surveillance of unidentified flying objects sponsored by the New Jersey Assn. on Aerial Phenomena from 6 a. m. today until 6 a. m. tomorrow.

John Novo of 69 Hobart St., Hackensack, N. J., coordinator of the skywatch, said that in case of 60 per cent cloud cover or more the watch will be postponed until the next clear night.

Observers are asked to report the shape, color, number and brightness or other features of any unidentified flying objects. A coin or some common object should be held at arm's length for comparison of its apparent diameter with the object.

The direction of the object's path of travel and elevation should also be noted and whether it passes in front of or behind an object the distance of which can be readily ascertained.

Sneak Thief Cuts Down Valuable Tree

TANNERSVILLE — A sneak thief, obviously lacking the Christmas spirit, cut down a valuable 20-foot Colorado Blue Spruce tree in front of a Tannersville home sometime Monday night or early Tuesday morning.

Jack London reported the pilfered tree was in a row of nine trees in front of his home.

He said the stolen tree will leave an unsightly hole in his landscape that will have to be filled.

Lewis Movie At Sherman

STROUDSBURG — Jerry Lewis' newest movie opened yesterday at the Sherman Theater. The title is "Who's Minding The Store?"

It is a story of a boy with not too many "smarts" who is in love with a girl. The girl is the heiress to a large department store and the boy is unaware of the fact.

He is hired and given impossible chores to do around the store, one of which is painting the ball on top of the flag pole.

Monroe Among 7 Counties Eligible For Feed Program

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County was among seven additional Pennsylvania counties designated Tuesday as being eligible for the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture's livestock feed program.

The program will help county farmers feed their breeding stock by making grain feed available at reduced rates, according to the Monroe County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Office in Stroudsburg.

The serious drought condition the country experienced this past year was a carryover from 1962 and has resulted in inadequate pastures and short feed supplies. Most of the early hay crop has already been used, according to the local agricultural office.

Under severe drought conditions the Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to make available feed grain owned by the Commodity Credit Corp. to eligible farmers.

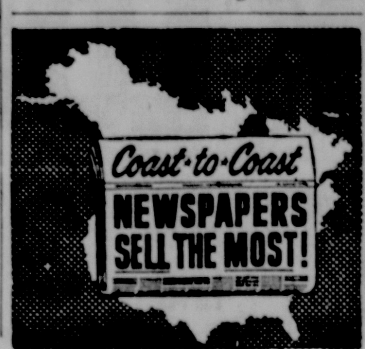

The grain is sold to owners of dairy producing cattle, sheep and goats at not less than 75 per cent of the feed grain support price. Grain for other eligible livestock is available at 100 per cent of support prices. Available CCC-owned feed grain will be offered under the program through the Monroe County Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee.

The committee will determine the eligibility of farmers for assistance.

The law provides that livestock owners otherwise eligible for assistance cannot buy CCC-owned feed grains unless they do not have sufficient feed for their livestock—or are unable to obtain it through normal channels of trade without undue financial hardship.

Must Show Need
Producers are required to show need for the grain when (they apply at their ASCS county office.

Made eligible for the program in addition to Monroe were Armstrong, Beaver, Centre, Lycoming, Tioga and Venango Counties. Previously 29 other Pennsylvania counties were made eligible for the program.

Mrs. Kennedy Attends Mass

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy attended a private Christmas Day Mass with the parents of her slain husband.

She was driven by a Secret Service agent to the home of Joseph P. Kennedy, former ambassador to Great Britain, for the Mass.

She wore a black coat and white gloves in the chilly, 50-degree weather. A low temperature of 39 degrees gave Palm Beach its coldest Christmas on record.

Mrs. Kennedy's children, Caroline, 6, and John Jr., 3, were not present for the Mass.

Secret Service agents said the Rev. John Cavanaugh, family friend and former president of Notre Dame University, was at the Kennedy home and presumably said the Mass. An hour and a half later, Mrs. Kennedy returned to the home of Col. C. Michael Paul, where she and the children are spending the holidays.

Christmas Cactus Brings Queries

By George Abraham
CHRISTMAS CACTUS — Which plant brings in more queries to this department? You guessed right. It's the Christmas Cactus, outranking the African Violet, presently America's No. 1 house plant. The big question is: "What can I do to get my Christmas Cactus to bloom?" Oddly enough, some indoor gardeners have no trouble at all. They keep the plant in an east window until the 1st of December, then bring it into a warm room to flower. "It's just that simple," one reader writes.

I hesitate to give instructions for making the Christmas Cactus bloom because there is a school of gardeners who can skip the rules and make the plant bear bushels of blooms now.

Successful growers may not know it, but they've been giving their plants the right amount of light and the right temperature, two important factors for the Crab Cactus show.

This item, like the Poinsettia, sets buds under short day conditions. That is, it needs the long continuous dark nights such as occur naturally from mid-October on. If the dark period is interrupted by light from your lamps, the plants will not set buds.

So, according to the books, this item should be in a darkened room from 5:00 p. m. to 8:00 a. m., starting around October 20, and continuing for a minimum of 40 days. I know hundreds of home owners who do not do this, and they still get blooms for the holidays. Then what causes the buds to set for them?

Sometimes it's the shade from lace curtains, or the position of the window. These are enough to provide enough shade to do the trick.

Temperature is important, too. If the plant is kept at a night temperature of 55 degs., flower buds will form. If the night temperature is kept above 70 degs. regularly, the Christmas cactus will not form flower buds. See why it's called the Crab Cactus? It makes people crabby when it fails to bloom!

DWARF ORANGE — One reader who raises the Calamondin (dwarf orange) indoors, tells us how she gets the plant to produce up to 50 fruits a season: "When the flowers are out, I pick up our cat and use its tail to pollinate the blooms. Take the tip and dust it on a bloom, then swish it on another bloom.

Repeat this process until all the blossoms are visited. Each year I have anywhere from 30 to 50 handsome oranges on my single bush. Without the help of our cat's tail, I doubt if we'd get any fruit at all."

(Green Thumb note: The Calamondin, and other citrus fruits, do better if you transfer pollen from one blossom to another. We usually use a Camel's hair brush. We'd use a cat's tail, but unfortunately our cats all have bob-tails.)

FLOWERING MAPLES — Here's a maple which isn't a maple. Abutilon (Ah-boot-till-on) has maple-like leaves (hence the name, flowering maple) and bell-shaped blossoms which hang like a bell. Flowering maple is a free bloomer and is used in hanging baskets, pots and as climbing items. There is a variegated variety having green leaves and white and yellow margins and blotches.

Indoors, the Abutilon tends to become a bit leggy but you can prevent this by pinching back the tips and side shoots in spring. This causes new shoots to come out up and down the main stem making the plant more compact and shapely.

You can root the cuttings in plain tap water and make new plants for your friends. Another way to start new plants is from seed sown in a mixture of sand and peatmoss.

Best room temperature is around 72 degs. or so, and it needs the brightest window possible. In fact, full sunlight will bring out the best color with the flowering maple. While the plant does not need as much water in winter as in summer, care should be taken not to allow the stems to shrivel from a lack of water. Keep the soil uniformly moist, and at night move the plants to a cool room (60 degs.)

PEPEROMIA — The so-called "Watermelon Begonia" is neither a melon nor a begonia but is a Peperomia (P. Sandersii) and is one of the most popular and durable foliage plant we have. Most peperomias do best if grown on the dry side. If kept too wet, they'll rot, or develop diseased spots on the undersides of the leaves. Protect them from direct sunshine and keep the foliage free of dust. Peperomia with dark rose-colored leaves. It's ideal for terrariums.

CHRISTMAS BEGONIAS — To me this is the showiest of all begonias. It prefers a bright window (not direct sun) and the cooler you can keep it the better. At night move it to a cool hall for longer life. In day, it likes 70 degs. and plenty of water. Too high a temperature causes plants to stretch out. Flower drop can be due to maturity of plant, poor light or high temperature. Avoid getting water on the leaves as these plants mildew readily. If you see a grayish white patch on foliage, it's mildew. Stop it before it spreads too far or fast. Pick off individual leaves and burn. If entire plant is covered with white fuzz, better destroy it.

Question Box

QUESTION OF THE WEEK:
A. N. of Stroudsburg — "I'm going away for two weeks and would like to know how to care for violets and other house plants during that period. Could we fill a tub with shale and water, then place the pots on top of the shale so they could water themselves?"

I can see no reason why this won't work. Either gravel or shale is suitable. Merely set the pots on top and they'll take up water automatically.

Another trick is to place a couple bricks in the bottom of your bathtub, run in a couple inches of water, and place the potted plants on top of the bricks.

Some time ago a reader told us she places newspapers in the bottom of the tub and places her flower pots on these. A plumber wrote to tell us that this is not a good trick because the chemicals in the ink are apt to etch or stain the enamel on the tub.

Another method for handling plants is to water them well, then place a plastic balloon over them. These can be the type you receive from the laundry or dry cleaner. The plastic tents conserve moisture and eliminate the need for frequent watering.

D. F. of Roseland — "Please tell me how to care for a cyclamen plant. We had a white one given us for Christmas, and three days after it was delivered, the leaves turned yellow. What caused this?"

High temperature is the plant's worst enemy. While most homes are comfortably heated at around 72 degs., the cyclamen prefers a cooler room, if possible. If you cannot keep it in a cool room during the day, keep it cool at night for longer life.

Cyclamen likes lots of water. Yellowing of foliage is due to high temperature and a lack of light. Dry soils will cause the leaves to wilt. Once drooping sets in, water the plant thoroughly by placing pot in a pan

Utility Completes Line Servicing Regional Area

EASTON—Pennsylvania Power & Light Company has completed construction of 4½ miles of high-voltage transmission line in the Stroudsburg area. This line will connect PPL's Martins Creek plant with a similar 4½ mile line built by the Metropolitan Edison Company from its Portland plant.

The new line will be an additional link in the Pennsylvania-New Jersey-Maryland Interconnection (PJM). Both companies are members of the Interconnection, one of the largest fully synchronized power pools in the world. The PJM Interconnection serves 184 million people in four states and the District of Columbia.

Power companies began to interconnect their systems and "pool" their resources many years ago. This was due to demands of more customers for more electricity, and was made possible by the industry's continuing progress and improving technology. Interconnection is proceeding nationally on an even greater scale today.

The PJM pool now includes the generating and transmission facilities of its member companies, tied together and completely synchronized. The linking of several separate power systems into one pool brings economic advantages which insure better service and lower cost power.

Construction of the Martins Creek-Metropolitan Edison line has been under way since March of this year. Costing $550,000, the line was placed in service last week. The 220,000-volt, single-circuit line is erected on steel towers. It also is equipped with two overhead ground wires

Results and discoveries originating in the Veterans Administration vast program of medical research are made known to the world in more than 3,000 papers published in medical and scientific journals every year.

Depot Nurse Cited For 'Abilities'

TOBYHANNA—Miss Theresa Puluka, of Tobyhanna, head nurse of the Tobyhanna Army Depot dispensary, Monday received an "outstanding" performance rating, the highest issued in U. S. Civil Service.

She was cited for "demonstrating exceptional leadership and managerial abilities, unusual devotion to duty, and fairness in all her dealings with subordinates."

Miss Puluka has been employed at the depot since 1953. She began her Federal service with the Air Force at the Tobyhanna Military Reservation in 1944. Subsequent jobs took her to Olmsted Air Force Base, Middletown; Veterans Administration Center, Bath, N. Y., and the Veterans Hospital, Wilkes-Barre.

Local Firm Wins PMVB Brochure Pact

STROUDSBURG — The local firm of Planned Color Brochures, Inc. was selected by the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, Inc. to design, organize and produce the Vacation Bureau's annual, all-new color brochure for 1964. The firm is headed by John G. Valence of Stroudsburg.

Eric Schuchard, PMVB president, explained that an invitation to bid on the new brochure, entitled "Pennsylvania's Scenic Poconos," was sent to eight different firms. Upon receipt of bids, the three low bidders were then invited to make a detailed presentation of their plans for the brochure. Individually, before the PMVB Advertising Committee, chaired by HARRY Ahern.

The PMVB Advertising Committee took into consideration such factors as price, quality of pictures available for inclusion in the brochure and the experience of the bidder, among other factors.

All members of the PMVB have been notified that Planned Color Brochures, Inc. has been awarded the contract, and all have been requested to take immediate action to return their unused copies of the brochure to the division Secretary, a large task with the expanded PMVB membership.

Valence, president of Planned Color Brochures, said he is offering his complete services to assist PMVB members to review, and in some cases, revise their advertising layouts in order to upgrade the ad copy where necessary.

Valence said that it is his strong desire to produce the finest Pocono Mountains promotion brochure ever to describe the growing resort area.

Insurance Agent Cited

STROUDSBURG — William E. Murphy, an agent in the Prudential Stroudsburg office, 11 S. 7th St., Stig, has been cited by his company for outstanding achievement in group insurance sales.

According to Edward P. Canavan, manager of the Eastern office, Murphy will be presented with the company's group award in recognition of his accomplishment.

Murphy has been a Prudential representative since 1949. He lives at 181 Streamside Ave., East Stroudsburg, Pa.

New Law Partnership In Milford

MILFORD — Three Milford lawyers have announced the formation of a new law partnership commencing on January 1, 1964.

The attorneys are Sidney L. Krawitz, Robert E. Sigal and William C. Gumble.

Sidney L. Krawitz is a native of Hawley, graduate of Syracuse University and Dickinson College of Law; has been practicing since 1937. He is a former assistant district attorney of Wayne County; a former solicitor of Pike County, and a member of the faculty of the Dickinson College of Law and a co-author of the "Tax Atlas," a handbook for lawyers and attorneys; and is a director of The Hawley Bank, Hawley.

Krawitz is admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania and the United States Supreme Court.

Sigal is a graduate of Yale University, Boston School of Law and the New York University Graduate Law School; and is admitted to practice in the States of Connecticut and Pennsylvania; and has been practicing in Milford since 1962.

William C. Gumble is a native of Paupack, a graduate of Dartmouth College and Dickinson College of Law and was admitted to practice in Pike County last October. Gumble is also a director of Gumble Brothers, Paupack.

'63 Wool Program Ends Dec. 31

STROUDSBURG — Producers were reminded again today that the 1963 marketing year under the National wool program ends December 31. According to Arlington W. Martin, chairman, Monroe Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, this means that payments for the current 1963 year will depend on completing all details of marketing either wool or lambs by that date. Marketing completed after December 31, 1963, will be eligible for payments for the 1964 marketing year.

Martin explained that the 1963 marketing year under the wool program has been shortened to 9 months in order to shift the wool marketing year to a calendar-year basis, beginning in 1964. Because this is a change from previous programs, he declared, some producers may not be aware of the deadline slip by thinking that they have several more months before the current program ends.

He urged that producers make sure that all details of the 1963 year are completed not later than December 31, 1963. This includes passing title to the buyer, delivering the wool to the buyer, either physically or through documents transferring control to the buyer, and having available all the information needed to determine the buyer's total purchase price.

Applications for 1963 marketing year payments under the National Wool Act may be filed with ASCS county offices up until January 31, 1964. Martin said since the program year will end earlier than usual—on December 31, the 1963 payments will likely begin in April of next year instead of late-summer, as under previous programs.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

The Christmas dinner was an unqualified success: Cornish hens a la Kiev with gold lamb-chop panties, a red and green double Christmas bell salad, creamed onions, yellow squash, green peas with celery and pimento — although not cut out in Linda's little stars but just sort of hunked — and mince pie.

This was not a solo production, since the salad, the pie, and the Cornish hens were gifts, and the electric fry-pan which supplemented the two burners was borrowed, but the juggling to get everything done at once was all mine. There are certain definite advantages in having a limited amount of space, however.

In most cases you don't entertain the company in the kitchen or cook in the parlor but when they're both one, the appetite of the guests is whetted by the sight and sounds of the cooking, and the cook's life is brightened by being part of the conversation and the fun and games.

They were particularly lively this year since Pete brought his guitar and we covered everything from folk songs to Kiwanis club favorites, with each chorus a signal to switch a vegetable to another burner. It was a beautiful Christmas.

The music wasn't quite as professional as in the jazz session which developed when Dr. John Rumsey, John Lazo and Dr. Lew Hunsicker joined the regular combo. Envious bystander was Walter Schlough who could hardly have brought his own piano with him.

Taking full advantage of the music were Tommy Ingraham and Marie Rumsey Cassels, whose dancing days date back to Miss Ackler's Dancing Classes. Now Tommy had his bride with him, and a most attractive girl she is, and Marie and her husband P.K. and their young son are about to take the long way home to Pakistan, by way of Colorado for New Year's, Hawaii, Japan and Hong Kong.

Speaking of new brides, John Willhoit's pretty blonde from the South in their first visit home, is being introduced around to what always must seem to be a bewildering number of people.

Gail McDowell also brought a guest home for the holidays, her new puppy. "How nice," friends say indulgently, and then ask the inevitable, "What kind?" It's amusing to watch how they sit up and take notice when she answers "A Russian wolfhound."

An Air Force Band concert in Chicago, got Mickey Michelfelder half way home, and he placed the rest of the way for a holiday with his family. Another way-fairing Air Force man, I haven't managed to see yet is Earland Clark and his wife and daughters.

The holidays are still young, however, and I'm going to keep looking for all of you, which is about all there is to report on — until the Christmas engagements start coming in full flood.

It's an odd time of year for a reporter of the social scene. There is no lack of big stories — well, an engagement might not take up much type space, but there's usually a picture and the news itself is important. But all the little meeting announcements with "bring your own table service" or "World Banks will be turned in" no longer provide the padding for the rest of the news. But there's one thing about a mid-week holiday, the next weekend comes in a mighty hurry.

Mrs. Siptroth Heads Gap Fire Co. Aux.

Delaware Water Gap—The Christmas meeting of the Delaware Fire Co. Aux., was held at the home of Mrs. Lewis Ace with Mrs. Ace and Mrs. H. J. LaBar as hostesses.

Mrs. Stanley Siptroth was re-elected as president for 1964; Mrs. Harry Buzzard, secretary; Mrs. Rodney Baechtold, treasurer. Mrs. Norman Pirie was elected vice president and Mrs. Ace assistant treasurer. Directors elected were Mrs. F. J. Martin, Mrs. Lewis Ace and Mrs. P. A. Rockefeller. Mrs. LaBar and Mrs. Rockefeller were named as auditors.

During the social hour, members exchanged gifts and the hostesses served holiday refreshments. Present were Mrs. Orin Lambert, Mrs. Nelson Lightner, Sr., Mrs. Harry Buzzard, Mrs. F. J. Martin, Mrs. Willard Kitchen, Mrs. Rodney Baechtold, Mrs. P. A. Rockefeller, Mrs. Russell Shellenberger and Mrs. Stanley Siptroth.

Miss Christopher Anderson Bride Of Medical Student

Syracuse, N. Y.—Miss Christopher Ames Anderson was married on Christmas Day at 2:30 in the First English Lutheran Church in Syracuse, N. Y., to John David Halverson, of Fayetteville, N. Y.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Michael Wile, formerly of East Stroudsburg, now of River Vale, N. J., and of Tod Andrews of Los Angeles, Calif. Her husband is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Paul Halverson, of Fayetteville, N. Y.

Rev. Frank H. Shimer performed the ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her stepfather, Michael Wile. Mrs. Sherman A. Murphy III was her matron of honor.

Stephen P. Halverson served as best man and Mark S. Wile ushered. The ceremony was followed by a Christmas dinner for the family and members of the wedding party, at the Hotel Syracuse.

After a wedding trip to New York City, Mr. and Mrs. Halverson will be at home at 123 Bridget Circle, Syracuse, N. Y.

The bride was graduated from Syracuse University in 1963. She was a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority. She is a speech therapist with the Syracuse Public Schools.

Mr. Halverson was graduated from Hamilton College in 1963 where he was a member of Chi Psi Fraternity. He is now a student at Upstate Medical Center.

New Torte For The New Year

By Celly Brownstone
Associated Press Food Editor

What some people like about cooking is that there's always a new cuisine to conquer.

Some of the most interesting foreign desserts are those that come from Austria, and of these the most famous are torten. For these, airy cakelike layers—concocted of ground nuts and a few tablespoons of fine dry bread crumbs plus eggs, sugar and flavoring—are sandwiched together and covered with whipped cream.

Here is an up-to-date American version of the nut torte using the comparatively new dry roasted nuts that come in jars. It's okay to bake the torte layers a few days before you plan to serve them. Covered tightly with transparent plastic wrap, they may be kept at room temperature, refrigerated or freezer-stored. The whipped cream for the filling and frosting may be added shortly before offering.

Although the layers of this torte are as light as sponge cake you'll find small portions of the dessert are in order if you're serving it at the end of a regular dinner. Make the portions bigger if it's to end a soup-and-salad lunch or supper.

Mixed Nut Torte

- 1 tablespoon confectioners' sugar
- 1 jar (9-1/2 ounces) dry roasted mixed nuts
- 6 eggs, separated
- 6 tablespoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons fine dry bread crumbs
- 2 cups heavy cream

Grease two 8-inch round layer cake pans; dust lightly with confectioners' sugar. Finely grind enough of the nuts to make 1-1/2 cups; reserve remaining nuts for garnish. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Gradually add about 2 tablespoons at a time. Stir in well the lemon rind, lemon juice, 1 cup of the ground nuts, and the bread crumbs. Beat the egg whites until they hold stiff straight peaks; fold in the egg-yolk mixture. Turn into prepared cake pans. Bake in a slow (325 degrees) oven about 40 minutes or until top springs back when touched gently with finger. Place torte in pans on wire racks to cool completely; loosen edges with spatula and invert, easing out with fingers if necessary. Whip cream until stiff, adding sugar to taste. To one-half of whipped cream, stir in the remaining 1/2 cup ground mixed nuts. Spread between torte layers. Spread remaining whipped cream on top. Garnish top with the remaining whole nuts. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

"Morning Star" was sung as the Moravian beeswax candles were distributed in the traditional Christmas Eve service. On Christmas morning at 10 o'clock, the Moravian Church also held a service of worship.

Two Services For Moravian Worshipers

Newfoundland — The Moravian Church held a Christmas Eve candlelight service at the church, when the children of the Sunday School presented a pageant written by Mrs. Robert Smith, South Sterling.

Stephen P. Halverson served as best man and Mark S. Wile ushered. The ceremony was followed by a Christmas dinner for the family and members of the wedding party, at the Hotel Syracuse.

After a wedding trip to New York City, Mr. and Mrs. Halverson will be at home at 123 Bridget Circle, Syracuse, N. Y.

The bride was graduated from Syracuse University in 1963. She was a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority. She is a speech therapist with the Syracuse Public Schools.

Mr. Halverson was graduated from Hamilton College in 1963 where he was a member of Chi Psi Fraternity. He is now a student at Upstate Medical Center.

Dinner Party For Mt. Pocono Fire Co. Aux.

Mount Pocono — The Women's Aux. of the Mount Pocono Fire Co., 80 Strong, gathered for a Christmas dinner party at the firehouse, catered by the Beaver House.

Mrs. George Bean, retiring after two years as president, presented the new officers: Mrs. Robert Beseker, president; Mrs. Robert Landowne, vice president; Miss Marie Miller, treasurer; Mrs. Robert Altemose, financial secretary; and Mrs. Richard DeHaven, corresponding secretary.

The invocation was given by the chaplain, Mrs. John Sutton, with a silent prayer in memory of four members who died during the year. Mrs. Helen Rainer, Mrs. Mason Linn, Mrs. Robert Altemose sang solos and the entire group joined for carols with Mrs. John O'Neill as pianist. Mrs. Jack Irwin presented a program of humorous readings.

The party committee included Mrs. Louis Hopke, Mrs. Charles Whitlow, Mrs. Bernard Paillo, Mrs. Roy Gross, Mrs. Richard DeHaven, Mrs. John Grose, Mrs. Wesley Meixell and Mrs. Francis O'Boyle.

"Morning Star" was sung as the Moravian beeswax candles were distributed in the traditional Christmas Eve service. On Christmas morning at 10 o'clock, the Moravian Church also held a service of worship.

Portland Children Add Cheer

Portland — The children of Portland have done their part in spreading Christmas cheer during the pre-holiday season.

The fifth and sixth grades of the Portland elementary school caroled at the Barto Nursing Home and also caroled in school on Friday morning under the direction of Mrs. Walter Emery.

At the entertainment in the school gymnasium, the sixth grade under the direction of Miss Ruth Williams, teacher, presented a skit dealing with the every-day life of a sixth grader with Miss Williams and the pupils playing themselves.

Miss Williams, who is also the principal of the school, was presented with a radio.

The newly-organized Brownie Troop held a Christmas party at the home of the assistant leader, Mrs. Sherman LaBarre. There were carols, exchange of gifts and refreshments.

Present were the leader, Mrs. Val Fontanella; Leann Dunk, Sherman LaBarre, Mary Morekin, Susie Pfeiffer, Bernice Handelson, Kathy Trimmer, Kathy Lynch, Sherry Kileart, Debra Peters, Connie Butz, Debra Miller, Linda Yetter and Vicki Rauscher. Three Brownies were ill and could not attend.

Fireside Party For Poconos Legion Aux.

Mount Pocono — An old fashioned Christmas party was held by Poconos Memorial Unit 903, American Legion Aux. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Sutton, Pocono Road on Monday night.

A buffet supper was served around the open fireplace by candlelight. Gifts were exchanged and Mrs. Sutton was presented with a gift from the unit.

Those present were: Mrs. Andrew Sebring, Mrs. Helen Platt, Miss Ellen Regan, Mrs. John Regan, Mrs. Louis Hartman, Miss Hazel Hartman, Mrs. John O'Neill, Mrs. Patrick Horgan, Mrs. Thomas Sables, Mrs. Andrew McGinley, Mrs. Walter Merwin, Mrs. Helen Rainer, Mrs. Walter Snyder, Mrs. George Wendley, Miss Marie Miller, Mrs. Robert Beseker and Mrs. Sutton.

Matter Of Guesswork

By William A. Doyle
Q. I own about 400 shares of American Telephone & Telegraph stock. Every time the company has made a "rights offering" to stockholders I have used my rights to buy additional shares. As you have noted, AT&T is going to make another rights offering. This time I intend to sell the rights I will receive.

When should I sell the rights to profit the most? Should I sell them as soon as I receive them? Should I wait until just before the rights expire? Or is this a matter of plain guesswork?

A. Your last question is the easy one to answer. Yes, it will be a matter of pure guesswork. Early in March AT&T will mail to shareholders rights to subscribe to one new share of stock for each 20 shares owned as of Feb. 18. The rights will expire early in April.

The exact dates for the mailing and the expiration of the rights have not been set yet. Neither has the price at which the stock will be offered to stockholders. All this will probably be announced just before Feb. 18.

You will be able to exercise your rights or sell them any time after you receive them through the expiration date. Don't fail to do one or the other on or before the expiration date.

The value of the rights will depend on the price at which the stock is offered to shareholders. For example, if the subscription price is at $21 less than the market price of the stock, each right would then have an indicated value of $1 a share. If the market price of the stock goes up, so will the market value of the rights. And, if the market price of the stock goes down, so will the market value of the rights.

During the last AT&T rights offering to shareholders, in 1961, the market prices of both the stock and the rights did go higher toward the end of the subscription period. The market prices of the rights ranged from a low of 1 and 3 sixteenths ($1.1875) on March 22 to a high of 2 and 9 thirty-seconds ($2.28125) on April 10 and 11. The subscription period ended April 14.

Don't misunderstand. This is just background information. There's no guarantee that history will repeat. Trying to spot exactly the "best time to sell" anything in the stock market remains guesswork.

Q. The following may make me sound like a Communist or a village idiot. But please hear me out. If I pay $75 for a Series E. U. S. Savings Bond, the bond will be worth $100 at maturity — seven years and nine months later.

But my impression is that $100 will buy less after that length of time than $75 will buy now — because of inflation. Am I wrong?

A. Probably not — at least based on past history. And most people realize that price inflation will continue to eat away at the purchasing power of the dollar.

But you can say the things you do about E bonds about any fixed-income situation.

This is one of the big reasons (perhaps the major reason) why more and more people are turning to such things as common stocks and mutual fund shares which, hopefully, will rise in dollar value to at least offset the effects of inflation. Of course, stocks and such can drop in price.

Going all out in either direction can be risky. So, it's generally wise for each family to have some balance — with some of its assets in fixed situations (especially for emergency purposes) and some in investments aimed at protecting against inflation.

(Mr. Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.)

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Thursday, December 26, 1963
March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — With Mars in highly favorable position, you should be able to face this day with new vigor. Concentrate on all worthwhile endeavors and you can accomplish much.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Maintain a realistic viewpoint, avoid ambiguity and double talk, and you will keep the atmosphere clear — a necessity if you are to accomplish your best work now.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Don't rush into day's program without careful thought lest you find yourself hamstrung by day's final state of affairs.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Your intuition, foresight and reflexes should be at a peak now. Don't let periods of lethargy or indifference cause you to offset good influences.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Maintain groundedness. You can win needed cooperation in difficult areas. No matter how tedious the hours, keep your objectives and your dreams — in view — and fight to realize them.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — You are in the midst of changes, some steady, some others self-directed. Use your reasoning faculties; do not allow yourself to be driven, but do weigh all proffered advice.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — An average day that asks a little more than ordinary effort. However, your steady persistence and confidence in your goals, you could make it a highly satisfactory one.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio) — Your discernment should be keen now. Look well to your investments, suggestions. Especially favored! arduous periods. Search, investigate. Make decisions carefully.

November 24 to December 23 (Sagittarius) — Fast increased advancement by directness and thoughtfulness and action. A creative day for concluding business transactions, making important decisions of all kinds.

December 24 to January 23 (Capricorn) — A day of time and effort now. Know why you are doing what you are doing, and the consequences of your rush with the crowd! neither ignore its influence.

January 24 to February 23 (Aquarius) — Study all problems with the intent to find better solutions. Take example from the highest types about you. With Your help, this somewhat average day could pay off.

February 24 to March 23 (Pisces) — Matters to review? Situations to correct? Go about them in an unemotional manner, sifting facts, theories. Here is a day for planning and acting with your usual efficiency.

YOU BORN TODAY are persevering and penetrating. You deeply love family, people generally; like nothing better than friendly gatherings to promote unity within your spheres. You are hard-working also, and endowed with fine business acumen. Curly tendencies toward hypersensitivity, moods, gloomy feelings. by KEN O'BRIEN
Daily Record Sports Editor

The telephone in the office rings. "For you, O'Brien."

"Hello."

"Ken, I'd just like to say that in my opinion—and in the opinion of many, many others—I think we have a real fine school board in Stroudsburg. I'll admit, along with many others, that you take a firm and logical stand on the board's motion to bar married students from athletics or any other public performance involving the school."

"I'm not questioning whether the board is right or wrong. But I do question whether the board deserves to be condemned for making one mistake—if you wish to call it that. Personally, I agree with you that the board probably did make a mistake on this matter, on the one hand. But then, on the other hand, I'm not so sure that married students be allowed to participate with other scholastic students. It's different in college. That's an older group. But even assuming the board did make a mistake, my point is this: Why condemn this group—or any other group—for making one error? Don't you have erasers on your pencil, too?"

End of phone call.

First of all, I really don't have erasers on my pencils. The office supplies us with one big eraser good for one year. (Mine lasts six months, if I'm lucky—and I'm usually not.)

Secondly, I have taken issue with the school board on one important and controversial issue. I'm certainly not condemning the board for all its past issues—and I certainly agree that the school board has done a very commendable job for Stroud Union.

My big complaint against this motion is the way it is written—and I still claim it is both discriminatory and fallacious.

This is the content of the edict:

"That married students attending high school be permitted to earn credits for graduation, but they be denied the privilege of participating in activities in which there is any public performance involved or in which the students act in the name of the school."

Now, looking at this edict—word for word—here is my argument:

1. Let's assume that, in the future, a student becomes a father but does NOT get married, or . . .

2. A student DOES get married but later becomes divorced. Now then, in either case—according to the letter of this law—this student would be allowed to participate in all public performances of the school by the simple reason that he is NOT married. He still may be a father, or he may be divorced, or both.

Of course, I realize that the motion was not intended to mean this. But the fact remains that this is the huge loophole in the edict. It pertains ONLY to married students. And this is one of the fallacies of the entire thing.

This, too, was one of the big arguments by Dr. John P. Lim, the only board member who voted against this motion. "What is wrong with the marriage and what rules or regulations were broken that certain opportunities and privileges will be denied?" asked Dr. Lim.

Still another argument is this point: The motion was made "effective tonight" (Dec. 18). There is only one person attending Stroud Union High School that this edict concerns. He is Fred Frantz, a senior who has been married for more than a year and who will lose the right to play baseball this school term. Freddy is the only married student in Stroud Union today.

Defending the notion that this edict was not aimed at only one individual is the board president, Robert Hellman.

"I think everybody's interest should be considered," he declared. "It wasn't the board's intention to crucify any one person or any minority group."

"Everyone on the board was taking the large view, or total effect, on a very serious problem. We were not concerned with any one student."

"The intent was not made toward Freddy Frantz. You (The Daily Record) just took this up and added wood to the fire."

Well sir, maybe the wood has been added to the fire. But the fire can be quickly doused. Just make this motion effective at the start of the next school year. Then this motion will not affect the only married student at Stroud Union. Then—and only then—will it be aimed at individuals not yet known. Then—and only then—will it eliminate this allegation that the motion was aimed at one individual.

But not until then.

And, in the meantime, the board will have plenty of time to rewrite this edict to eliminate the loopholes. There's simply too many of them as it is presently written. And, maybe by that time, the board might even be able to get a UNANIMOUS vote on it.

And then again, maybe the whole idea will be junked.

Tittle To Face Bears' Bandits

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — That old eagle, Y. A. Tittle, is the money man of the New York Giants.

And the Chicago Bears have four bandits who will try to rob him blind.

Tittle, the National Football League's leading passer, will be throwing against the top aerial defense in the league when the Giants clash with the Bears in Wrigley Field Sunday for the NFL championship.

Foresees Classic

If the field is dry — and all precautions possible have been taken to make it so, regardless of the weather — the battle between the 37-year-old Tittle's receivers and the Bears' four deep backs could be a classic.

The Jesse James boys of the Bears are Rich Petitbon, ring-leader and biggest of the gang, at 6-foot-3 and 205 pounds; Rosey Taylor, only 5-11 but he can outjump a kangaroo; Dave (Weasel) Whitsett, also only 5-11, but as persistent as a bloodhound; and Benny McEae, a slim 6-footer who once was the Big Ten's hurdle champion on the Michigan track team.

The four have combined to steal 29 enemy passes. Taylor is top-gun with nine and Petitbon has eight. Both are all-NFL selections this year.

They will be covering what Tittle described as the four best targets he ever has had in his sights. They are flanker Frank Gifford, who has made 42 catches for 657 yards; split end Del Shofner, 64 for 1,181; tight end Joe Walton, 26 for 371, and utility man Aaron Thomas, 22 for 469.

Penn State Looks First At Staubach

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP)—Penn State's Nittany Lions got their first look at Heisman Trophy winner Roger Staubach next year in their 1964 football opener against Navy.

The Navy battle Sept. 19 at Beaver Stadium highlights the Nittany Lions nine game schedule.

Penn State did not play Navy this year and the season before, Staubach had not yet cracked the Middle lineup.

Other home games include Oregon Oct. 3, Syracuse Oct. 17 and Maryland Oct. 31.

The Lions will take to the road against UCLA at Los Angeles Sept. 26, Army at West Point Oct. 10, West Virginia at Morgantown Oct. 24, Ohio State at Columbus Nov. 7 and Pitt at Pittsburgh Nov. 21.

Nov. 14 is an open date. Dropped from the Nittany Lion schedule was Holy Cross.

Dial Trade Linked To 3-Corner Deal

By LOU PRATO

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Did the recent trade of Steelers' pass-catching whiz Buddy Dial to Dallas trigger a spectacular three-corner deal that will ultimately put the National Football League's one-time glamour boy Paul Hornung in a Pittsburgh uniform?

That's the hot report circulating this week in the city's taverns, barber shops and steel mills where loud grumbling is still rampant over the swap of the popular Dial for the rights of All-American tackle Scott Appleton of Texas.

If true, it would clear up a lot of the perplexing and veiled details surrounding last week's astonishing trade.

At the same time, it also would confirm what some sportswriters and broadcasters have been saying privately all year—that Hornung, the former Green Bay wonderboy suspended indefinitely last April for games, would be reinstated after one year and immediately traded by the Packers.

"No Truth"

At Green Bay, head coach and General Manager Vince Lombardi of the Packers said flatly, "There is no truth to it. I don't know what the rumors are in Pittsburgh, but there is no truth to the story on this end."

League Commissioner Pete Rozelle says he won't re-examine the Hornung case until February at the earliest.

And Pittsburgh coach Buddy Parker denies that the Dial-for-Appleton trade was anything more than a straight player deal.

Yet in discussing the Dial trade, at least two Pittsburgh sportscasters—one a close, personal friend of Dial — have injected Hornung's name into the picture, speculating that he might wind up with the Steelers. No other names have been mentioned publicly, but according to the most popular account the trade would be completed in this fashion:

3-Way Deal

In exchange for Hornung, who would go to Pittsburgh, Green Bay would receive place-kicking star and defensive end Lou Michaels from Pittsburgh and standout flanker Frank Clarke from Dallas. The Cowboys would get another player from either Pittsburgh or Green Bay in addition to Dial.

"I haven't talked to anyone about such a trade," Parker said when queried about the report. "I don't know who made that one up. We traded Dial solely for a defensive lineman—Appleton."

Although there is no reason to doubt Parker's veracity, there are too many points in the Dial-Appleton swap that don't jibe.

For one thing, it's still impossible to believe Parker would give up on the best receiver in the league — one who is just reaching his peak — for an untested college sensation even with the credentials of Appleton.

This is in complete opposition to the technique that has made Parker one of the NFL's most successful coaches — that is, trading away draft choices for veterans.

Top Draft Choice

And there's no assurance that Appleton will even sign with the Steelers. He was the No. 1 draft choice of the Houston Oilers in the American Football League, a team that spares no costs to land its top prospects and one that will certainly make a chauvinistic appeal to the native Texan.

Another cryptic particular concerns the consummation of the trade which Parker said was made at the NFL draft meeting Dec. 1. You may recall the draft was held up for 2½ hours before Dallas chose Appleton. Parker admits talks of a deal for Dial caused part of the delay. But no one has revealed the precise reasons for the unusually lengthy hold up.

"I think," said one Pittsburgh newsman, "if we can learn what caused that 2½ hour delay, we might have the answer to this Hornung rumor!"

Fun, Work Fill Air For Illini

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The spirit of Christmas and football — filled the air Wednesday as the Illinois Rose Bowl team observed the holiday with fun and work.

Coach Pete Elliott scheduled an afternoon drill in Brookside Park and the squad and coaches were set for the annual Christmas party, with tree and presents, tendered by the Tournament of Roses.

Outsiders were barred from the practice field, as is generally the custom with Big Ten teams training for the New Year's Day game.

Sitting Pat

And while Calhoun Jim Owens, of the rival Washington Huskies, has juggled his so-called No. 1 team, Elliott apparently is sitting pat with the same combinations which earned the Big Ten championship.

That would include such tested players as quarterback Mike Tallafiero, halfbacks Sam Price and Jim Warren and fullback Jim Grabowski, plus the line-backing of Dick Butkus and Don Hane.

Illinois stressed its running attack in building its 7-1 record and Elliott has indicated there will be no change. But insiders report there is ample emphasis on the aerial game in the secret maneuvers.

VIRGINIA Tech's last undefeated, united football team was in 1918.

Back To Work

Giants End Yule Layoff

NEW YORK (AP) — Like almost everybody else, the New York Giants spent Christmas at home Wednesday. But they'll be back at work again Thursday to sharpen up for their National Football League championship game against the Bears Sunday in Chicago.

Coach Allie Sherman plans full-scale workouts at Yankee Stadium Thursday and Friday. The team leaves for Chicago by chartered plane Friday evening.

The day's rest was welcomed by all the Giants, especially Del Shofner, Sam Huff and Alex Webster, who are recovering from injuries. All were well enough to work out Tuesday.

"I'll be all right," said Shofner, the all-league split end, who bruised some ribs in the final regular season game, against Pittsburgh on Dec. 15.

Huff, who sprained his right ankle when he stumbled in practice last Friday, said it no longer pained when he applied pressure on the foot.

"I rested the ankle over the weekend and kept heat on it," said the crushing linebacker.

Fit And Ready

"It's coming along fine. I haven't been babying it."

Webster has been bothered by back and leg miseries for more than a month now. The fullback hasn't played in that length of time, either, but he says he now is fit and ready to go.

"It's up to Allie, of course," said Webster, "but I'm ready to play. I've been running well in practice. The aches and pains have disappeared."

Sherman appeared satisfied with the condition of his players. "The men have had a good rest," he declared. "We took care of the basics on offense and defense the first part of the week. For the next two days we'll go hard. Then we will be as ready as we'll ever be for the Bears."

Most odds-makers were still making it an even game, although some have made the Giants a slight favorite.

Santa Anita Opens Today

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—With a strike threat by track workers shelved, Santa Anita Park inaugurates its winter meeting on schedule Thursday with the $20,000-added Palos Verdes Handicap.

A crowd of 35,000 was anticipated for the opening of the 55-day meeting. If all nine go in the Palos Verdes, the purse will gross $22,650 with the winner earning $13,650.

Until late Christmas Eve, it appeared a labor dispute might delay the meeting for the first time in the 28-year history of the showplace track.

Shafer Beer, paced by Luck Pipher with 235 and 624, took the measure of Swisher Rheinhold 3-1 and thereby became the winners of the First Half. Their margin of victory was by 3 points over Frank's Barber Shop. Swisher's high man was Pete Casella with 264 and 595. Frank's Barber Shop won from L. and B. Appliances 3-1. Their key man was Hank Baustien with 234 and 593 and best for L. and B. was Lou Lee with 231 and 628. Jim Harmon Jr. had games of 223, 223 and 203 and a series of 649 to lead Eagles "B" to a 4-0 win over Babe's Service Station. Babe Miller was best for the Station with 201 and 583. As this First Half ended the bowling of Jim Harmon Jr. should be given high mention. Jim won high average with a score of 205 plus. In 42 games he had 26 over 200, nine matches in the 600s, one series 708 and finished the half with 14 consecutive games over 200.

SUN LITHO-PRINT, INC.

Congratulation, Farewell Yule Spirit At Sun-Litho

There were congratulations, farewells and Merry Christmas greetings all mixed together at Sun Litho-Print, Inc., the day before Christmas.

James A. Somers performed a dual job as manager of the N. Courtland St. printing plant. First he bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. George B. Forster on their retirement from Sun Litho after 24 years of service. Mr. Forster officially retired from Sun Litho on November 21st.

Next, he officially welcomed Tom West and congratulated him on his appointment from shop foreman to sales manager.

Mr. West will fill the vacancy created by Mr. Forster's retirement. Also coming in for his share of congratulations was Joseph Corby, who was promoted to shop foreman. Mr. Corby was formerly with the U. S. government printing office and Hughes Printing Co. He's had 23 years experience in the printing business.

Mr. West, who was foreman at Sun Litho for 3½ years, is a graduate of Thaddeus Stevens trade school and has also had extensive printing experience in New Jersey printing plants.

"Tom is available and ready to go wherever the customer's problems are," Mr. Somers pointed out. "All it takes is a phone call."

Mr. Somers, who has been manager of Sun Litho-Print since January 1960, has instituted a number of changes and improvements in the printing plant's facilities.

Sun Litho, which now serves over 250 regular accounts, handles both letterpress and offset printing work in either black and white or color.

Sun's modern print shop also offers its customers fast printing service through the use of high-speed lithograph and camera facilities.

As Jim Somers puts it: "We can handle anything from a business card to a complete catalog."

Among Sun Litho's printing accounts are industrial and commercial concerns, resorts, institutions State and local branches of government.

A total of 16 persons are actively employed at Sun Litho in the various specialized fields of printing and preliminary layout work.

that comes to life right on you!

Fabricadabra

BANDEAU... fits as though the bra were made right on you...

thanks to the exclusive all-cotton that g-i-v-e-s. Feels like your own skin, but shapes and supports better than wire, bones, molds or anything. Washes like a hanky (soft as one, too)—never shrinks and drip-dries like new—no ironing ever. And FABRICADABRA is so light you scarcely know you're wearing a bra. It looks like nothing off... but everything on... so try it on, tomorrow.
